PROMONTORY AND METAVANTE LAUNCH PARTNERSHIP FOR CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT ACCOUNT REGISTRY SERVICE

ARLINGTON, Va. (April 2, 2003) – Promontory Interfinancial Network, LLC, announced today that it has entered into a technology integration partnership with Metavante Corporation, the financial technology subsidiary of Marshall & Ilsley Corporation (NYSE: MI), to provide Metavante clients with seamless access to the Certificate of Deposit Account Registry ServiceSM (CDARSSM).

Promontory's CDARS service is a popular new funding tool for banks and a CD service for their customers that allows their deposits to be eligible for full FDIC insurance on amounts greater than $100,000. Using CDARS, smaller banks can spread out customer funds into FDIC-insured CDs at different banks, a practice used for decades by larger banks and brokerage firms. When customer deposits are sent out of the bank, an equal amount of deposits are brought back into the bank from other institutions in the network, with each bank setting its own local market interest rates.

“Banks have been so enthusiastic about CDARS. We're delighted to team with Metavante to help bring their family of bank users into our network,” said Eugene A. Ludwig, chairman and chief executive officer of Promontory and former U.S. Comptroller of the Currency.

Promontory unveiled CDARS earlier this year and has already established a nationwide network of member banks and prominent boards of industry expert advisors, including former Federal Reserve Board Vice Chairman Alan Blinder and former FDIC chairman Bill Isaac.

“Offering our financial institution clients a flexible CD product that encourages their customers to make time deposits in larger amounts with their institution is a product that we believe will be useful in marketing and customer-retention strategies,” said Jamie Geschke, senior vice president and general manager, Metavante Financial Technology Services. Metavante Financial Technology Services offers the most comprehensive set of integrated products and services for more than 900 financial services providers that are centered on customer and account management, specializing in deposit, loan and investment accounts.
